

FEED YOU (the pantry version, for 2 voices)

A: Feed you!

B: [spoken] Can I have a banana?

A: Feed you!

B: [spoken] Is this really all mine?

A: Feed you!

B: [spoken] Where am I supposed to get it?

A: At the pantry / feed you all week long / that's right, folks! / we can do it! / at the pantry / feed you all week long / 'cause if you shop the pantry / you will grow up / big and strong!

B: [spoken] What do you mean 'shop the pantry?' Don't they just give you a box of food to take home with all kinds of stuff you don't like?

A: [spoken] Oh, you have MUCH to learn.

B: [spoken] What?

A: [spoken] You think this is all just for show, my good pal? The loaded up shelves with all different foods? That empty basket you're holding?

B: [spoken] Look, it's a food pantry! It's embarrassing to go there!

A: [spoken] Does this look embarrassing to you, punk? You get to choose what you want to eat, in a place where everybody treats you like a person with dignity and pride!

B: [spoken] ...they do?

A: [spoken] They DELIVER, pal! Like from their storefront TO YOUR DOOR, with everything you need and more!

A: Are you in need of a tasty good meal? / We're not dining out, so let us be real / this is the place you can get the best deal / you're gonna get it

A: They got meat, eggs, and dairy, and stuff from the farms / more than you can carry out in your two arms / a can of green beans and maybe some Lucky Charms! / you're gonna get it

A: With the pantry / you'll go far / you'll eat well for days / take a chance / head down there and / you'll get the kinda eats / the kinda red-hot treats / all the nice-n-healthy good stuff that you craaaave

A: C'mon pal, now don't be a fool / down on Main Street, everyone's cool / you need food and they've got more than enough

B: I need food and they've got more than enough!

A & B: We/I need food and they've got more than enouuuuuuugh

A: [spoken] SO GO GET IT.
